

The Gozmic

Old People are unique source of inspiration as for super aged society of Japan is concerned, they are superb people, mostly they are worried about their young generation they believe that coming generation is less focused to what we want to see them and want to preserve their indigenous culture, family structure, struggle, life experiences and achievements for new generation for long time.

Talking to different people we found That 73% of people love to save their gorgeous moments of life. Life experiences of parents, achievement, native culture, and stories for coming generations they don't want to lose their legacy. Here is our Idea,
